If you register with Tutors and Exams, they will make the entry and moderate the coursework themselves.

AS Level Exams

For the majority of subjects, AS Level exams contribute up to 50% of the final qualifications grade, this is because the AS Level and A Level results are combined to form the final grade. Students have the opportunity to take some AS Level exams in the Summer 2025 series, November 2025 series, January 2026 series, or the Summer 2026 series (alongside their A Level exams). When students take the exams is a personal preference, we will send reminders before each exam series opens.

UK qualifications including Classical Civilisation, Media Studies, Politics, and UK A Level Sciences do not have AS Level exams that contribute to the overall grade, for this reason we recommend students do not sit the AS Levels for these subjects.

Other Opportunities to Sit Exams

Some subjects can be taken in the November and January exam series, please see the list below of the subjects that can be taken in the November and January exam series. Some students choose to use the November or January series to resit, while others decide to split their subjects and take some exams in the summer series and some in the November or January series, it is a personal preference which exams students take and when.
